Low pressure passed through the area on the 14th. The low tracked along a boundary that separated warm and humid air to the south and west from cooler marine air to the north and east. The warm and humid air led to an unstable atmosphere, and there was enough instability for storms to become severe. Video footage shows a second, more significant flash flood wave moved down Hudson Branch during the times indicated. Cars, dumpsters, and other large debris were swept downstream. Water covered a second-floor deck and entered structures, and was at least a foot deep flowing over Court Avenue at the peak of the flooding. The stream was not fully back in its banks in this area until after 8:00pm due to debris blockage.
