DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COUNTY --- 1.6 ENE US CAPITOL [38.89, -76.99]

There were a few dozen calls for trees blown down in DC. Five people were injured when a five story dwelling under construction collapsed in the 900 block of Kennedy Street Northwest; one person was trapped and later freed. A large tree blew down onto eastbound Massachusetts Avenue Northeast near 10th Street Northeast.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COUNTY --- 1.1 NW LINCOLN MEMORIAL [38.89, -77.06], 1.1 NE LINCOLN MEMORIAL [38.89, -77.04]

A tornado that began in Arlington crossed the Potomac River near the Theodore Roosevelt Memorial Bridge on I-66/US-50. The first sign of tornadic damage in the District of Columbia was at the west end of the National Mall, with a snapped hardwood tree on The Mall on 23rd Street Northwest between US-50 Constitution Avenue Northwest and Lincoln Memorial Circle. Along US-50 Constitution Avenue Northwest, wind damage to trees paralleling the roadway was prominent from 23rd Street Northwest east for about three quarters of a mile to near 16th Street Northwest south of The Ellipse. Tree limbs fell to the north on US-50 Constitution Avenue Northwest. Concentrated damage at the north portion of Constitution Gardens was chaotic, with hardwood limbs and downed trees falling in multiple directions. The last discernible tornadic damage was to temporary fencing on The Mall that was installed for the Independence Day celebration, directly across from The Ellipse. This fencing appeared to have been lifted up and twisted, landing in a mangled and haphazard manner.

A brief tornado separate from the one that impacted the National Mall touched down in the H Street Corridor at 9:08 PM EDT. A large tree limb fell on two cars along the 600 block of I Street Northeast. A large hardwood tree was snapped along the 900 block of 7th Street Northeast and fell due north. Numerous smaller tree limbs were downed in this area.

The tornado proceeded east along the H Street corridor, crossing over Maryland Avenue Northeast causing intermittent downed tree limbs. Several hardwood trees were down near the Rosedale Recreation Center property, falling due west. The circulation then diminished at 9:10 PM EDT.

Location Date/Time Deaths & Event Type and Details Property & Injuries Crop Dmg A tornado touched down at 8:59 PM EDT in the Waverly Hills community of Arlington. Numerous trees were snapped in multiple directions in this community, notably in and around Woodstock Park and in the backyards of residences in the 4500 block of 20th Place North in Arlington. One tree in Woodstock Park had its bark removed as a result of the wind. As the tornado crossed into the Cherrydale neighborhood of Arlington, several trees were uprooted and numerous large branches were snapped, some blocking roads and downing power lines. Some homes had siding and shingles removed, and a few windows were broken from falling trees. Several homes also had porch railing and gutter damage with doors blown open. The tornado continued east over the Lyon Village neighborhood, downing several trees and numerous branches across the north end of the community, including around the community center. The tornado weakened slightly as it moved into the Courthouse community, passing just north of Key Elementary School, continuing to snap large branches and down power lines. Damage became hard to identify as the circulation crossed the highly urbanized area of Rosslyn, but emerged again after the tornado crossed the Potomac River and entered the District of Columbia at 9:03 PM EDT.
